THE RANI OF JHANSI

Lakshmibai, the Rani of Jhansi, was one of the most resolute, patriotic and illustrious leaders of the First War of Independence in 1857. Her struggle against the alien rulers was courageous and consistent. She inspired her followers with unbounded enthusiasm and zeal for her cause. When she took over the government of Jhansi in June, 1857, she was hardly twenty two years old, but she showed the grit of a warrior and wisdom of a saint. As an organizer par excellence she revamped the administration of the State, boosted the sagging morale of her troops and raised a banner of revolt against the British. She fought with undaunted courage the forces led by Sir Hugh Rose. When Jhansi fell, she successfully made her escape to Kalpi to continue the struggle. On 17 June, 1858, she finally died a martyr's death at Gwalior. In the words of Sir Hugh Rose, "she was the bravest and the best man on the side of the mutineers."

LAKSHMIBAI NATIONAL COLLEGE OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION, THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

1.0 THE BACKGROUND

Lakshmibai National College of Physical Education, Kariavattom, Thiruvananthapuram, which bears the name of Lakshmibai, Rani of Jhansi, the dauntless heroine of the First War of Independence, was brought into existence by the Government of India, Ministry of Human Resource Development, Department of Education on 17th August, 1985. Hence, the college is a humble tribute of the nation to the unrelenting spirit of freedom, valour and patriotism. As an off-shoot of Lakshmibai National College of Physical Education, Gwalior (now LNIPE) it aims to provide excellent facilities to uplift physical education and sports in the country and serve as a model institute of teacher-training by offering under-graduate, post-graduate and doctoral studies.

The college is located at the northern side of the Kariavattom Campus of the University of Kerala approximately 15 k.m. from Thiruvananthapuram city on the National Highway 47. The expanse of coconut and cashew plantation produces a soothing effect on the human body, mind and spirit.

1.1 OBJECTIVES

The main objectives of the Institution are: -

- i. Preparation of highly competent and skilled leaders in the field of Physical Education, sports and games;
- ii. Serving as a Centre of Excellence for research in Physical Education and allied areas;
- iii. Providing technical, professional and academic leadership to other institutions of Physical Education;
- iv. Providing vocational guidance and placement services to people in the field, and
- v. Developing and promoting programmes of mass physical activity.

1.2 COURSES OFFERED

The college is affiliated to the University of Kerala and it offers the following courses:
